Undead dentistry: A business with bite

- 'Fangsmiths' make their money creating handmade teeth extensions
- Some movies mean more business, while others take away from it
- Metro talks to a real bloodsucker who doesn't even need teeth to feed

EMILY ANNE EPSTEIN/METRO

▶ Ali Fangsmith fashioned fangs for a client yesterday in Queens.

These are not your typical tooth fairies. A handful of "fangsmiths" make a living fashioning wearable vampire teeth for New Yorkers.

Queens resident Ali Fangsmith, 40, has been creating pointy incisors for more than a decade. His clients range from fang aficionados to grandmas hunting for the latest denture accessories.

"I keep my prices reasonable to keep the fang society going," he said. The vanity biters sell for $50 a pair.

Fangsmith uses a host of dental equipment — like polishes, buffers and "a lot of drill bits" — to create the custom canines. No license is required for the work.

FANGSMITHS IN THEIR OWN HABITAT: WWW.METRO.US/VAMPIRES

"I worked in dental labs briefly," he explained, though his true inspiration came from watching other fangsmiths in action.

The fangs, which take less than an hour to make, are molded to teeth using dental acrylic, they and slip on and off with no pain. But that doesn't mean they can't be used to cause pain.

"They are sharp enough to break skin," Fangsmith warned. "I don't recommend eating or sleeping with them."

In fact, a bite from someone wearing the fangs would require a trip to the emergency room, explained East Village resident and master fangsmith Father Sebastiaan, 30.

"Human saliva is filthier than dog saliva," he said. "Legally, I can't advise people to drink blood."

The popularity of movies like "Twilight" and shows like "True Blood" hinder rather than help business, Sebastiaan said.

"Few 'Twilight' fans know vampires even have fangs," he said. "The fangs in 'True Blood' are silly-looking. It hurts business."

Movies like "Blade" and "Interview with the Vampire," however, create more clients: People come in and request Brad Pitt- or Wesley Snipes-inspired canines, Sebastiaan said.

Ali Fangsmith said work is steady. Just last week, he fit a 65-year-old's dentures for her birthday.

"There will always be new blood," he said.

▶ O'Dassey

A real sucker for blood

NEW YORK. Manhattan resident and self-proclaimed vampire Seregon O'Dassey, 30, says she started drinking blood as a little girl.

"I would suck on a wound to help heal it," she told Metro. "I liked the taste of it."

Now she sucks droplets of blood from the pierce of a lancet designed for diabetics.

Her boyfriend is her main blood donor, volunteering his finger for the prick.

"Men have a much stronger taste," she explained. "It tastes almost dirty."

But she warned that choosing a donor is like choosing a sexual partner. "You should be safe," she said. "It's like sex." METRO/EAE

Police: Pair plotted murder of man's wife

Police arrested the husband of a woman killed last week in New Jersey, saying he plotted her death by text message with a Massachusetts woman.

Nazish Noorani, 27, was killed while walking with her 3-year-old son last week in Boonton, N.J. Police said her husband, Kashif Parvaiz, was assisted by Antoinette Stephen, who texted Parvaiz things like "Freedom is just around ur corner."

Parvaiz initially told police the attack was racially motived, but cops soon suspected him of plotting the crime. METRO/AB

▶ Michael Pena was arraigned Saturday on rape charges.

NYPD officer faces charges of rape

Prosecutors say a Washington Heights cop raped a woman Friday ◐ Suspended and could face life in jail

A police officer might face a grand jury early this week on charges he raped a woman at gunpoint in an Inwood courtyard.

Michael Pena, 27, is behind bars on a $1 million bond and is scheduled to be back in court Wednesday. He was charged with first-degree rape, criminal sexual act and predatory sexual assault.

Prosecutors said Pena, who was off duty from his assignment to a Washington Heights precinct, approached a 25-year-old teacher around 6 a.m. Friday, asking directions to the 1 train. Then, they say, he showed his 9 mm. gun and forced her through an alley behind a building near 217th Street.

Pena could face 10 years to life in prison if convicted of the charges of rape, criminal sexual act and sexual assault.

Family members and a lawyer for the three-year veteran worked to dispute the charges.

"My son is innocent," his father, Persio Pena, told the Daily News. "He's not the kind of person who would do that."

Pena's attorney, Juan Campos, did not return a call for comment. In court, Campos suggested alcohol might have been involved.

An NYPD spokesman said Pena was suspended without pay the day of the incident.

The arrest comes nearly three months after two former cops, Kenneth Moreno and Franklin Mata, were acquitted of charges they raped a drunk woman they were called to help.

City paid out $6B in suits

NEW YORK. Taxpayers helped pay $6 billion for city lawsuits between 2000 and 2010, according to the New York Post. The city had to pay the cash for judgments and settlements to plaintiffs in an array of lawsuits, from a fall from a jungle gym to a Long Island woman who tripped in a parking lot.

In 2010, the city spent $520 million to pay off claims, largely in cases against city agencies like the NYPD and the Department of Transportation. Other settlements included a Rikers Island inmate who got $25,000 after slipping on wet steps. A 9-year-old Brooklyn girl also got $5,000 for pain and suffering after she was injured on a school playground. ● METRO/AB

Hi! My name is Jeb! I'm a 6-year-old male Labrador retriever and chow chow mix. I like people I know, but it will take time and patience for me to warm up to strangers.

I know my basic commands like "sit" and "down." I am very eager to learn basic manners and will work well for a taste of my favorite treat. When out for a walk, I stay right by your side.

I may have a few dog friends, but I should be the only dog in my forever home. I don't like having certain parts of my body touched, but the shelter's behavior department will show you some exercises to help me become more comfortable.

My old owners said I was house-trained, but I may need supervision at first as I adjust to a new home. You will need to teach me to trust you. I need an owner with some experience. I should be okay going to a home with kids ages 14 and up. I want to chase cats and cannot go to a home with them.

▶ Tens of thousands of Libyans celebrate the arrest of Gaddafi's son Saif al-islam and the fall of Tripoli into the hands of the Libyan rebels in Benghazi, Libya.

Rebels enter heart of Tripoli

Group celebrates in symbolic square ◐ Gaddafi troops put up little resistance ◐ Two sons detained

Jubilant rebel fighters streamed into the heart of Tripoli early today as Muammar Gaddafi's forces collapsed and crowds took to the streets to celebrate, tearing down posters of the Libyan leader.

Rebels waving opposition flags and firing into the air drove into Green Square, a symbolic location which the government had until recently used for mass demonstrations in support of the now embattled Gaddafi.

Earlier, a convoy of rebels entered a western neighborhood of the city. Rebels said the whole of the city was under their control except Gaddafi's Bab Al-Aziziyah stronghold, according to al-Jazeera Television.

Remaining defiant, Gaddafi earlier had made two audio addresses over state television calling on Libyans to fight off the rebels.

"I am afraid if we don't act, they will burn Tripoli," he said. "There will be no more water, food, electricity or freedom."

But resistance to the rebels appeared to have largely faded away, allowing the rebels and their supporters to demonstrate in Green Square.

Televised images showed Libyans kneeling and kissing the ground of Tripoli in gratitude for what some called a "blessed day." REUTERS

Sons held

Rebel National Transitional Council Coordinator Adel Dabbechi confirmed that Gaddafi's younger son Saif Al-Islam had been captured. His eldest son, Mohammed Al-Gaddafi, had surrendered to rebel forces earlier and was being kept under house arrest.

DSK 'rape' case set to be dropped

NEW YORK. Prosecutors will ask a judge to dismiss all charges in the sexual assault case against former IMF director Dominique Strauss-Kahn at a court hearing tomorrow, the New York Post reported yesterday, citing unnamed sources.

The Manhattan district attorney's office will file a motion recommending the case be dropped, according to the Post.

Strauss-Kahn was once seen as a leading contender to be president of France until a maid, Nafissatou Diallo, accused him of sexual assault at New York's Sofitel Hotel. REUTERS

QUIET AFTER THE STORM

In the London borough of Tottenham where the riots began earlier this month, residents are still trying to come to terms with what happened

As the train approaches Tottenham Hale tube station, the number of people on the train increases. The sun is shining on Tottenham High Road, where small shops sell cheap plastic boxes and colorful dresses, while pregnant mothers take their children out for a walk in their trolleys.

Glimpses of destitution can be seen in old men drinking by the roadside, but there is no rubble on the streets.

The only indicators of the violence two weeks ago are some burnt-out buildings scattered around the main street, which is once again filled with its eclectic mix of Caribbean reggae restaurants, orthodox Jewish families and council housing estates for low income families.

▶ Many looted shops in Tottenham are still closed.

"Usually this is a busy place, but the atmosphere is subdued here. There is something in the air," construction worker Peter Murphy told Metro.

Total costs of the riots have been estimated up to $164 million. Most of the shops in the shopping centre are reopening in a week.

Inside the looted O2 mobile phone store, store manager Yas Jawaid said, "The kids did this for fun. What do they know of politics; they have no education," he says.

Jamaican builder Chester Namba is clearing out one of the destroyed houses, but is still constantly stopped and searched by the police.

"Even the other day when I went to this construction site wearing my work vest they stopped me."

Local clergyman Segun Johnson believes, "The working class doesn't feel they are being listened to. Riots took place here in '85 and '99 and it will, sadly, happen again."

Clasford Stirling, community developer at Broadwater Community Center, Tottenham.

Why did the riots happen?
Young people are frustrated all around the country. The stop-and-searching of youths for knives and other weapons is building up tension. We have to think about where we went wrong, and learn to look at it from all angles.

Describe a typical day of young person in Tottenham.
There is nothing for young people here; even the sports center is too expensive. During the day they are idle, sleeping or hanging around. The cuts have mutilated us. The streets can give them respect, girls, jewelry, drugs ... How can I compete with that? ... [U.K. Prime Minister] David Cameron said that they think the world owes them something. We owe them a good place to grow up. METRO

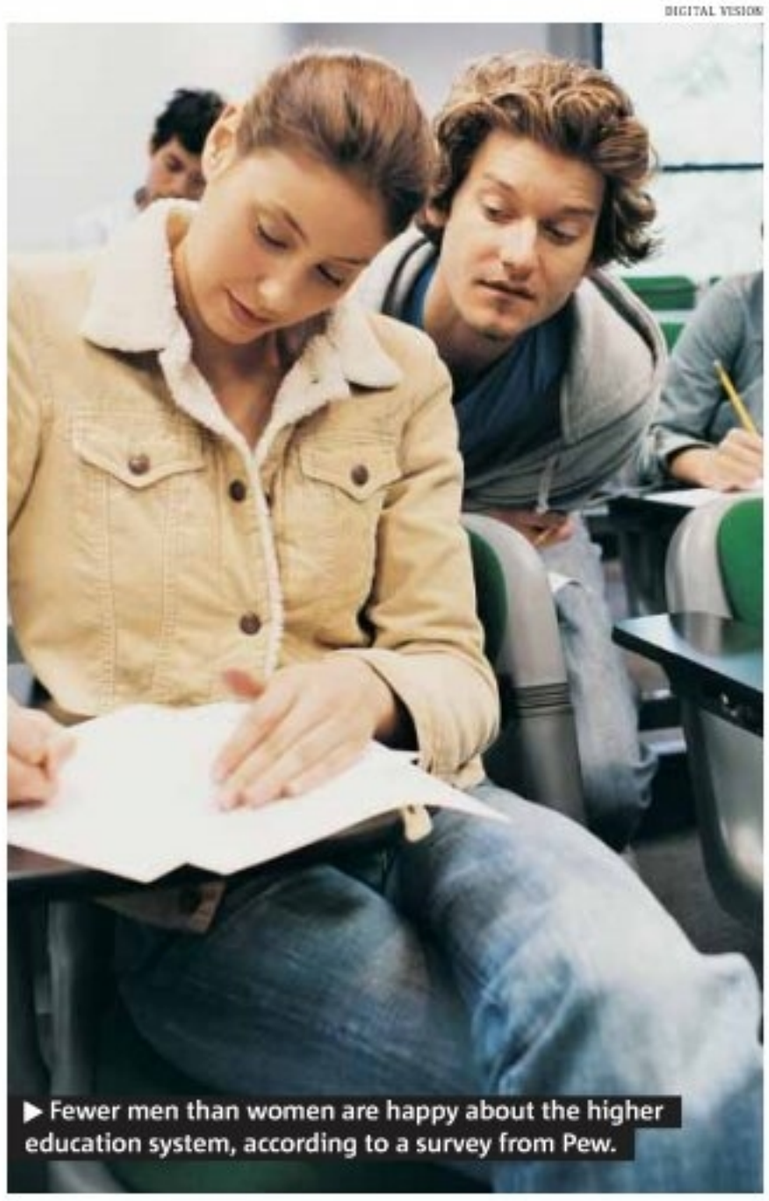
DIGITAL VISION



▶ Fewer men than women are happy about the higher education system, according to a survey from Pew.

Do women value education more?

A survey from Pew shows that the ladies graduate more than men, and seem to appreciate it more as well

Women obtain their degrees at a higher rate than men and they are also more likely to think it was worth it, a new study shows.

A recent survey by the Pew Research Center says about 50 percent of women who graduated from a four-year college gave the higher education system excellent or good marks for the value given the cost. Only 37 percent of men surveyed gave it the same high marks.

More women than men also said they felt their college education helped them grow professionally and intellectually. Could this have anything to do with the fact that society tends to think women need their education more than men do?

"While a majority of Americans believe that a college education is necessary in order to get ahead in life these days, the public is somewhat more inclined to see this credential as a necessity for a woman than for a man. Some 77 percent of respondents say this about women, while just 68 percent say it about men," researchers reported.

Our Aim is to Beat Most Offers!

We Strive to Beat All Legitimate Written Offers

Before Bringing your items to us, take them to other dealers. Have them give you legitimate offers in writing. Then bring your jewelry and written offers to one of our locations. Although no one can guarantee with certainty they are paying the highest price for an article at any particular time, we will strive to beat most legitimate written offers.

Why We Can Usually Pay More Than Other Dealers

Most jewelers and dealers specialize in few items and focus on newer looking items to resell. Because they are unfamiliar with many other items including vintage jewelry, old watches, coins, flatware, etc. they tend to offer very low prices because these items are not readily saleable for them. Our company has many specialized buyers for the various classifications of items that we purchase, therefore we can usually pay more.

A Note Regarding the Up To Prices listed in this Ad

The condition and rarity of an item determines its price. If an item is in excellent condition and very rare it might be worth the up to price, or even more. However, if an item is in poor condition, the value will be lower. For example, a 1927 S Quarter could be worth $7,000 in new condition or less than $20 in poor condition. The up to price reflects items of exceptional quality and rarity. Although it is unlikely you will have these items due to their extreme rarity, feel free to bring whatever items you may have and we will evaluate them free of charge.

Customer Satisfaction

Most of our business comes from satisfied customers and referrals which includes their friends and families. Our showrooms are safe and private. Our staff is courteous and professional and we strive as a company to make your selling experience a pleasant one.

Help the Environment
Using recycled precious metals for jewelry is an important way for jewelers to source precious metals more responsibly. Precious metals that have already been used in some way, including "vintage," "renewed," or "reclaimed" metals from jewelry and electronics, are not directly implicated in the destructive impacts of mining. They do not share responsibility for the impacts of mining in the same way that newly mined gold does.

THE WORD

Metro's Dorothy Robinson shares her take on the world of gossip @dorothyatmetro dorothy.robinson@metro.us

Kardashian wedding via text, tweet and one fake wedding gown

Guess who gets the credit for the crazy fascination with Kim Kardashian and her wedding to Kris Humphries? Not Kim. Not America's low budget tastes. Not her amazing bone structure, bodacious badonkadonk, nor her mother's savvy business and media sense. Nope. It's Ray J, who "starred" with her in a sex tape back in '07.

"And to think you really have me to thank for all this ;-)" Ray J apparently texted the bride, per RadarOnline.

As the site points out, Ray J made this kind of statement before, telling an interviewer last year that he "created" the reality TV sensation.

In a way, sure, maybe he has a point. But to text that to someone about to get married? And use a winky-face emoticon at that? Low blow, Ray J. Low blow.

As for the wedding itself, not much is being released, as most of the details will have to stay hush-hush in order to build anticipation for the two-part E! special "Kim's Fairy Tale Wedding." Wedding guest Ryan Seacrest did tweet: "Beautiful..kim looked regal, a perfect night. I just danced with the whole family." The only photographic evidence of her Vera Wang gown is a grainy photo taken by a helicopter through a tent (how fairy tale!) that's floating around. Luckily, Madame Tussaud's, who can smell a marketing opp a mile away, sent out photos of a Kardashian model in some gown they probably pulled off the wax figure of Circa 2002 Jessica Simpson, so we can sate our appetites until the Sept. 5 issue of People, who bought the photo rights for 1.5 million.

And that, my friends, is how you do romance, reality TV style.

PHOTOS: GETTY IMAGES

James and Von D are reunited

Jesse James and Kat Von D need to just go away to the "Where Are They Now" dustbin of popular culture already. Despite calling off their engagement last month, the two are back together, according to People.

"Sometimes you are only given one chance in life," James says. "It was up to me to open my eyes and see it. That girl is my chance. I will never stop fighting and striving to hold on to her. Showing her how special she is, and how much I love her."

[Ed note: Barf.]

Seeing as how her reality show, "LA Ink," was just canceled, Von D needs all the good news (or is it publicity?) she can get.

Talking points

Lindsay Lohan really can't get a job

It's more work-related bad news for Lindsay Lohan, who reportedly lost out on a role in "Magic Mike," a film loosely based on Channing Tatum's time as a stripper, according to E! Online. "The character is trouble with a capital T, which Lindsay would have been perfect for," a source says. But director Steven Soderbergh didn't agree, so he cast Riley Keough in the role instead. "He didn't want to deal with all that."

Stewart doesn't believe in marriage

Kristen Stewart doesn't have plans to marry Robert Pattinson anytime soon — or ever, by the sound of it. "I like the thought of two people staying together for the rest of their lives," she tells Germany's TVMovie magazine. "For me, however, this doesn't need to be sealed with signatures." But that's not stopping Pattinson from being romantic, as he reportedly purchased a $40,000 gold and platinum antique locket for Stewart recently with a personalized inscription that reads, "Even if you can't see me, my love for you is always there."

▶ Stewart

Emilio Estevez is ready for Sheen's return

Charlie Sheen is ready for his comeback, at least as far as his brother Emilio Estevez is concerned. "He's a completely different guy. He's got his voice back. And I think he's got his focus," Estevez tells Access Hollywood about the troubled former "Two and a Half Men" star. "He's on a new show ... I think that he's really got it together."

Conan kicks some butt

‘Conan’ and ‘Game of Thrones’ actor Jason Momoa really gets his character’s hidden depths The line between gruesome and cringeworthy

▶ Jason Momoa becomes the legendary Conan the Barbarian in last week’s release by the same name. For the complete profile, visit us online at www.metro.us/movies

SIMON VARSANO

After years on TV shows like “Baywatch” and “Stargate: Atlantis,” Jason Momoa is enjoying his jump to the big screen in “Conan the Barbarian.” Metro caught up with Momoa to talk about his prep for the role and his “Game of Thrones” character, Khal Drogo.

How was the preparation for playing such an iconic character?

I mean, that was very hard, dude. It’s daunting because I’ve never seen my body in that kind of shape before. I’ve never done those kinds of things before, so it was really hard, for sure.

And there’s some stuff for the DVD that was too gruesome for the theatrical release?

Yeah. You’re going to be shocked. There’s lots that was cut out that in truth I really loved but obviously was a little too gruesome.

More gruesome than the part in the movie where you grab someone by where their nose used to be?

To me that’s really interesting. I like that. It’s not gruesome, it’s not bloodsport, but that being said, it will make you cringe. There’s a lot of people getting their heads cut off in this one.

I was very sad at the end of the first season of “Game of Thrones.”

Yeah, no s—. You and me both, buddy. I love that series. There’s not enough good things I can say about it, but beyond that it’s truly a life’s work, and to be on that was an honor.

JONATHAN MANNION

▶ Shaggy headlines the Martin Luther King Jr. Concert Series tonight at 7:30 in Brooklyn.

Shaggy: The beat goes on

Reggae superstar is back with a new album Why you'll find his music, but not the singer, in the clubs

You may only know Shaggy for his early-aughts smashes "It Wasn't Me" and "Angel," but the 42-year-old Grammy-winning reggae singer has been keeping busy, most recently releasing a new album in July, "Summer in Kingston," that reached No. 1 on the iTunes reggae chart. We caught up with the "Boombastic" singer while he was vacationing in Italy.

You spent some time growing up in Brooklyn, now you're performing there tonight. How does it feel to be back?
It's good. I've done this concert series about twice already. I think it'll be an incredible crowd. You have young people, but there's a lot of grown up folks there.

So even though you're in Brooklyn, will you still be keeping the "Summer in Kingston" vibe alive?
Oh, absolutely. It's summer in Kingston wherever you are. We launched the album in Kingston and everybody came out and joined the celebration. We did the album very cheap — it's like $2.99 — for fan appreciation. The reason we could do that is because all the tracks I did were tracks that I owned, made in-house. I wrote them all, and I didn't have to go through the red tape of using super-producers.

How was it working on your own?
It is easier to do. You're in charge of your own destiny because you make smart decisions with your in-house team.

While you're in NYC, what are your must-visit spots?
I like Serafina. They do good food. I like Negril [for] jerk chicken. I'm not a club-hopping guy, but there's probably a couple bars that I might go to.

You don't like hitting the clubs? But all your music's played there!
Yeah, but that doesn't necessarily mean I want to be up in the club. If you caught me a couple years back, I'd be like "Yeah!" Now [I like] a nice lounge where I can sit down and have a conversation.

3 Reasons to squeeze in a vacation

STOCKBYTE

▶ OK, nobody said you had to flaunt your upcoming island getaway.

Peter Handal, CEO of Dale Carnegie Training, on why we loyal, productive employees should do everyone a favor and hit the beach

It could help your career

Don't be afraid of missing an opportunity while you're out of the office. "People are not machines — we can't run 24 hours a day, seven days a week. It really helps your career and helps you get ahead at work when you take a vacation from it," says Handal.

It could help your co-workers

Sure, they might not appreciate having to watch over your clients or cover your late shift, but in the long run, your co-workers will thank you for taking some time off. "Most people, when they get worn out, they're not team players," says Handal. "When you have employees who take their vacation time, you have a more harmonious workplace."

It could even help your boss

At the end of the day, your boss wants two things from you: A lot of work and as few things to fix as possible. He or she gets both when you take a long weekend. "You have higher productivity when people are rested, and you have less mistakes in that productivity," says Handal. "People tend to make mistakes when they're tired, and the product just isn't as good."

It's not like you're missing much

According to a recent CareerBuilder survey, one in four employers think their workers are less productive in the summer.

▶ While the nicer weather and distracting beach could have something to do with it, there's also this unfortunate finding: Of the managers surveyed, 45 percent suspect that their employees are burned out on their jobs.

Running the numbers on the education system

Statistician and research scientist Howard Wainer has some hard evidence on current programs and policies

In his latest book, "Uneducated Guesses: Using Evidence to Uncover Misguided Education Policies," renowned statistician and research scientist Howard Wainer applies the tools of his trade to answer a question that affects every American: What is wrong with our education system?

"Education is a complex system — so is putting out a newspaper or making paper for that matter. To improve a complex system, the worst way to do it is to have a committee, like Education 2020, to make recommendations. Nobody's that smart," says Wainer, currently at the Wharton School at the University of Pennsylvania. "The way to improve things is to have a constant program of experimentation. For example, when you manufacture paper, you may think you can improve things by increasing the acidity of the mixture. You're making small changes and analyzing them, not doing sweeping things based on panel recommendations."

"This idea of making teachers the villains in this particular mystery is ridiculous." WAINER

In his 13th book, Wainer pokes holes in almost every aspect of conventional education policy — college rankings, admissions, aptitude tests — including a scathing critique of No Child Left Behind.

"This idea of making teachers the villains in this particular mystery is ridiculous," says Wainer. "To look at a change in test score and attribute it causally to the teacher is absurd. For one thing, you can't make the comparisons they're trying to make: Suppose I gained 10 points in French and you gained 10 in physics. Is my French teacher as good as your physics teacher? Was Mozart better at music than Babe Ruth was at hitting? Tests can't tell you that."

Ratings all that matter on TV

RE: "TRAGIC BEVERLY HILLS SUICIDE": The answer to your question, "Should Bravo continue with the second season of 'The Real Housewives of Beverly Hills?'" is that they honestly don't care. When Kandi Burgoss' fiance on "Real Housewives of Atlanta" was shown after he died, they didn't care about what people would think because they care for ratings. Andy Cohen might feel bad, but at the end he wants to bring in ratings beyond what "Jersey Shore" has gotten.
DANNY MORALES, VIA E-MAIL

Some allowed to pee in flight

RE: "GERARD DEPARDIEU PEED OFF": I read your article about French actor Gerard Depardieu, who reportedly urinated in the aisle of a CityJet flight, and how he was not punished for that arrogant and contemptuous act. There seem to be double standards for people on some airlines. I recall actor Terrence Howard, who appears on "Law and Order, Los Angeles," being on an airplane with his family when one of his small daughters had to use the bathroom. He reportedly asked a stewardess who refused his request, and when Mr. Howard persisted in attempting to explain his daughter's predicament, he was arrested. There are still double standards directed toward certain groups. MARGARET JENKINS, VIA E-MAIL

A&F is much worse than that

RE: "BUT ALL HE WEARS IS ED HARDY?": You claim the only thing aspirational in the nature of A&F is "becoming a frat boy who lives for raging keggers." You failed to mention teen girls aspirations' in becoming objectified sex objects by wearing t-shirts emblazoned with slogans like "Who Needs a Brain When You Have These?" and "Available for Parties." Not to mention the aspiring racism of aforementioned frat boys wearing "Two Wongs Can Make It White." Next time, please ensure that the multifaceted aspirations of A&F are more accurately reported.

Horoscope

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. Be extremely selective regarding your companions. If you aren't, there could be a troublemaker in the group who will be responsible for making everybody feel uncomfortable.
♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. If you are unduly critical of others, it is likely because you're taking what they say out of context and misinterpreting innocent comments as intentional "zingers." Think positively.
♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. By attempting to mix business with pleasure, you could unintentionally cause someone in the group to feel uneasy. Make sure everyone is okay with the situation at hand.
♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. It's fine that your competitive instincts are easily aroused, as long as you don't get emotional over winning or losing and behave badly. Be a good sport about the outcome.
♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. When among friends, let sleeping dogs lie. Even if you bring up an old incident that you think funny, it could evoke a bitter reaction.
♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. It isn't always too smart to impose unsolicited advice on another. If the situation fails to work out well, he or she may blame you even if your counsel wasn't the problem.
♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. Avoid any situation in which you have to depend heavily on another. If you can't do what is promised, a bitter reaction might result.
♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. Although you're someone who usually tries to be of help to others, you could easily feel put-upon if another thinks you are always there for them, regardless of the situation.
♈ Aries March 21-April 19. Even if you could make someone over in your own image, you wouldn't like the results. It's easiest to just accept everybody for who they are.
♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. If everybody in the house seems to be walking around with an angry look, make sure it wasn't something that you did.
♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. Wanting everybody to respond to your edicts is untenable if you can't set the example by following orders. Don't ask of others what you won't do.
♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. When out with others, splitting the bill with them could be problematic unless you establish up front that everybody is willing to fork out. Don't assume something that might be rejected. BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Yanks take 2, Burnett bombs

The Yankees won their weekend series in Minnesota, but A.J. Burnett was still the focus. Burnett lost the only game of the series for New York after being bombed for seven runs in 1.2 innings on Saturday.

Storylines to watch

Preseason Week 2: Giants vs. Bears, New Meadowlands
When: 8 p.m., ESPN/My9 What's next: vs. Jets

Jason Pierre-Paul

GETTY IMAGES

1 Now it's really Jason Pierre-Paul's time

No need to worry about the will he, won't he drama of Osi Umenyiora anymore.

The defensive end underwent arthroscopic surgery and will be out for the rest of training camp, if not into the start of the season. That means it is all Jason Pierre-Paul for the rest of camp.

Pierre-Paul was tremendous in the first preseason game against Carolina with two sacks. He's been banged up in practice, but coach Tom Coughlin says he will start. Umenyiora might lose his spot for good.

2 Do they even have a tight end?

Anybody notice a tight end playing against the Panthers last week?

You certainly didn't notice Travis Beckum, who was presumed to be the starter once Kevin Boss moved on to Oakland.

He had zero catches last week. Jake Ballard, who might be the best combo tight end, had one catch.

In other words, there's a lot to prove. Daniel Coats and Bear Pascoe are also still options, so tonight is important.

3 Deon Grant makes his return to safety

When you've played in 160 straight games, you probably don't need much practice time.

Veteran safety Deon Grant is in that position. He was re-signed by the Giants this week and is likely to step into action right away — albeit not full bore.

"I think he will play some, but not a whole lot," Coughlin said.

Jets vs. Bengals

What we took away from the Jets' second preseason game:

1 First-team offense
A less than encouraging start was followed by a Mark Sanchez to Santonio Holmes touchdown giving the Jets a 7-0 lead.

2 From captain to captain
On the Bengals' second possession, QB Andy Dalton tried to squeeze in a pass to A.J. Green. Eric Smith broke on the ball for an interception.

3 Burress is back
Plaxico Burress caught a beautiful 26-yard diving TD in the second quarter.

K-Rod's return highlights surreal weekend at Citi

Athletes will tell you that returning to a former team is meaningless.

So it was rather odd to hear Francisco Rodriguez tell the throng of journalists surrounding him in the visitors' dugout Friday at Citi Field that he was anticipating his first trip back to Flushing.

"I was looking forward to saying 'hi' to my old teammates. They stood behind me in my struggles. I left some good friends out there," Rodriguez said.

Rodriguez's return was the headline of a surreal series between the surging Brewers and sinking Mets. Friday's game had an ejection and bench clearing confrontation, while on Saturday black smoke from a burning chop shop filled the air as a prelude to Rodriguez being booed and blowing a save.

"Great. Different role," he said on making the change to setup. "Still trying to make that transition as far as preparation [and] mentality."

Despite that blown save, the Mets were swept in the series. DENIS GORMAN
